On Tuesday, October 10, five people, including President Maenette Benham of the University of Hawaii at West Oahu, came to exchange views with President Kisakichi Kitajima and others to visit the facility.

The Faculty of Foreign Languages of the University of Hawaii, West Oahu, and the Faculty of Regional Co-creation of the University have signed an inter-faculty agreement in 2019. This time, we held a meeting for the purpose of further expanding academic and student exchanges between the two universities.

The meeting started with the word "We are Ohana (= family)" given to our university by the faculty of the university, and we discussed the themes of our efforts so far and the programs we want to develop in the future.

President Kitajima said, "The University is working to strengthen cooperation with overseas universities and organizations to develop global human resources. I would like to strengthen cooperation so that many students can gain experience overseas, not limited to the Faculty of Regional Co-creation," he said.

President Benham said, "Our mission is to create an environment where students can play an active role as global leaders. I would like to further promote cooperation in order to develop human resources who can lead a diversifying society."
